Acil Alexander, who lives in Indiana, but is staying in Georgia just now, let it be known some time ago that he wanted to marry and preferred a brown eyed beauty. Hundreds of letters have been sent him, with photographs and among them was one from Indiana, his home town. Think of a man looking all over the country for brown-eyed beauties and having one back in Indiana.

Hon Castro has the sympathy and thanks of the entire country outside the vaudeville interests, for his flying visit. He didn t stay with us long enough to get his name in the pot, or to start anything he couldn't stop, as he has been known to do in the past. Instead of trying to land in New York, where competition is so sharp, he should have come down and tried it on the Gulf coasts, where a good show isn t seen every day in the year.

WE KNOW HIS NAME.

The papers have been saying much of a man who was kidnapped when a boy, and who doesn't know his own name. It was over 50 years ago when he was kidnapped from his old Kentucky home.

No one seems to be able to say who this man is, but we have a suspicion. We believe he is the aforesaid and the same person who, did, wilfully and maliciously strike, whack, knock or hit, one Billie Patterson, one time complainant in this cause, said complainant having long ago defaulted in the payment of the court cost by reason of the death of said complainant, who has been looking all these years for the man who hit Billie.

The heirs and assigns of the late Mr. B. Patterson would do well to investigate the unknown Kentucky man, who is hunting for his real name.

A LIFE WITHOUT LAUGHTER.

Of a 16-year-old boy who committed suicide by sending a bullet into his brain, it is said by his father that he did not know how to laugh; that he had never been seen to smile except once when a baby sister did something that amused him. The joy of life was not in him.

The defect is not unusual, though rarely found in one so young, or so abnormally developed. Curiously enough, some of the most active brains of modern times have felt and described it. It is the basis of the whole philosophy of pessimism. Human life, according to Leopardio, is but an incessant swinging from discomfort to weariness, is but temporary relief we find in passing from one of these moods to the other. Schopenhauer taught a similar doctrine. Goethe felt it in his youth and expressed it in 'The Sorrows of Werther.' It is the tonic note in the poetry of Byron to which his songs invariably return. In a notable psychological romance Zola made a study of it and undertook to explain how youth, beauty and genius can fall into sheer weariness of life, while age, wretchedness, vice and even mental and physical deformity can ever find brightness in the sunshine, frolic in the winds and joy merely in living.

This is the truth that inspires the saying of Joseph de Maistre. It is not enough to give a man the means of livelihood, we must give him something to make life worth living." Many men have found life worth living without laughing, but they lived in sterner ages than ours. He that cannot smile in our time is forlorn indeed.—Drifting with no Credit.

...late ...of ...wife recently married ...Cristobal (Panama Canal Zone) and the ceremony consisted of just seventeen words between them as follows: "With this ring I thee wed, in love and truth for life till death do us part."

Short enough, but old experienced divorce mill hands say it is a good piece of legal work, and will stand the most severe strain.

Mrs. Ingersoll is a red hot suffragette, and her husband probably had strong leanings himself, and they cut out the "obey."

The daughter of Ingersoll probably remembered what he once said: "If you will treat your wife like a splendid flower she will fill your life with perfume and with joy." ... I believe in the equality of man and woman, in the equality of husband and wife. I believe that marriage should be a perfect partnership, that woman should have all the rights man has. It took hundreds and thousands of years for woman to get from a state of abject slavery up to the height of even marriage. I do not like a man who thinks he has got authority and that the woman belongs to him.

CHARACTER AS THE BASIS OF CREDIT
Atlanta Georgian

When Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan told the Pujo committee that character is the basis of credit in Wall Street, he overestimated the case. But he threw into the field of public discussion a tremendous idea.

It is not true in any financial center that men who live blameless lives can borrow money on their reputations. Saintliness is not a commercial asset.

Nevertheless there is a sense in which character can be capitalized. Passive virtue can not be turned in to credit. But active virtue may be. A man who is known to have ability to produce goods can often borrow—without security—the money to buy the tools to do it. A man with nothing but the known capacity for creative enterprise can sometimes get millions to finance his projects.

Mr. Morgan is wrong in saying or implying that as things stand in Wall Street men get capital mainly on the credit of personal character. He would have been right if he had said that all the wholesome tendencies of modern commercial evolution are running in that direction. There are unwholesome tendencies—in Wall Street and elsewhere—that run in the opposite direction.

In spite of his overstatement Mr. Morgan has performed an important public service in calling attention to the fact that the true and logical basis of modern business is not physical assets but mental or moral assets. Nobody can understand the phenomena of the world wide organization of modern finance who does not understand that in theory at least the tools go to those who can use them.

In the long ages before the rise of the sensitive structure of modern finance it was everywhere true that men had social power only in proportion to the bulk of their tangible possessions. It was only in the nineteenth century that it began to be true that a man's power depends not upon what he has but upon on what he can do.

The new empire of business with its centers of control in the banks and bourses of the world is never for a moment at rest. Its laws can not be understood by statisticians. It is forever plunging forward, like the planets in space. It is forever changing its material form and substance—like a spiritual creation. Its laws are dynamic laws. It is intent not upon the past or the present but upon the future. It lives upon expectance—the provision of things not yet accomplished. It is ruled—in a word—by credit.

Such at all events is the conception of the modern order of business that lies in the minds of those who see it as it means to be as it actually tends to become, and some day will be.

Mr. Morgan's inspiring sermon on the capitalization of character is not wholly true as a description of the existing facts. But it is a good prophecy.

The business world is only half mobilized. It is only half modern. It is clogged by ancient snags of privilege and monopoly. Because of these snags we have periodic convulsions and stagnation.

When business becomes thoroughly modern it will be universally true that men will have credit at the bank in proportion to their capacity for useful enterprise.

"WHITE" IN OHIO'S CONSTITUTION

Apparently it should be a very easy thing to make the constitution of the state of Ohio agree with the constitution of the United States, seeing that the constitution of the United States ... agreement ... at the recent election the people of Ohio decided ... to the matter of conflict with the United States constitution.

Curiously enough the ... put to the voters was whether the word "white" in the franchise clause ... the right to vote to every white male citizen ... should be omitted. Of course ... this clause is not effective ... of Ohio refused to ... out the word "white" and it remains as before a part of the state constitution. Race prejudice, says the Independent, is evidently still strong in Ohio.

Of course as the Independent sees it nothing but prejudice can account for the Ohioans action, and so it says that prejudice is still strong without waiting to ask whether prejudice ever existed in Ohio. The fact is that common sense of Ohio could see no good reason for combatting slavery without running to the extreme of granting to the uneducated and alien race all the privileges of American citizenship. Years have passed by, but sins engendered by a long and bloody war have subsided, but they continue as an under current of opinion that the franchise is something that must be earned. As far as Ohio is concerned it is in theory at least confined to the white race. And this is not the judgment of prejudice, but what naturally has resulted from further acquaintance with the race's aptitude for the exercise of the franchise.—Mobile Register.

HOW BAD BACKS HAVE BEEN MADE STRONG—KIDNEY ILLS CORRECTED.

All over Dothan you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Dothan people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your own townspeople. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, sore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passages are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Follow this Dothan citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

Mrs. J. W. Dozier, 701 S. Appletree St., Dothan, Ala., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills were very beneficial to me and I am glad to tell about them. I had headaches and backache. My kidneys were weak and at times I was nervous and dizzy. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills I used them and they completely relieved me."

FROM THE MOUTHS OF TOTS

Examples of Really Humorous Things That Have Their Origin in Youthful Brains

This unique rendition of the Twenty third Psalm is credited to a little colored sister:

De Lawd am de Sheperd—I shall not want—He makes me lie—Down in green pastures he restores my soul—an leads me side de still waters—Ya dou I walks thu de valleys of the shadows ob deaf I will fear no debbil fer he is wid me. Dye rod an dye staff comfortable me—Dou spready vittels an presents fer de folks I doan like an poured kerosene on my haid till my cup hits on full hit ain't gwine hole no mo.

Little James is a manly lad of four years. He has a great dislike for the curls with which nature has so lavishly endowed him and a great fondness for the forbidden beverage, coffee. One day thinking to discourage his desire for the latter he was told that it had a tendency to make the hair more curly. That night James cried in his sleep thus explaining the cause of his woe the next morning.

Oh, mother, I had an awful dream last night. I dreamed I drank so much coffee that my hair grew into one big curl on the top of my head and the barber couldn't cut it off!

MANY INDUSTRIES IN BUILDING

Two Hundred Housed in One Structure Located in Fulton Street, New York City

In Fulton street New York there is one structure which though classed as an office building has more than two hundred separate industries. There are lapidaries of various kinds among them diamond cutters and polishers all from Amsterdam. There are manufacturing jewelers who take gold and gems and enhance their value many fold by their artistry. There is a woman shoemaker with several Wall street information bureaus a detective agency, burnishers of metals, workers in words—otherwise freelance writers—manufacturers of face cream and toilet preparations in general, well borers, shirtmakers, doctors, perfumers, architects, engravers, dealers in real estate, in cigars, in liquor. There is one firm which is the largest dealer in the world in black diamonds, the gems used for boring deep into the earth.

Saving Carbons

Every time the attendant trims arc light it is necessary to remove a piece of carbon which may be three or four inches in length and this has been heretofore thrown away. The carbon can not be made any smaller for the reason that the rapidity of their consumption varies so that it is necessary to provide a carbon of sufficient length to insure that it shall last a prescribed period even though it should happen to be of a texture that would consume more rapidly than usual. There seemed to be no prospect of making uses of these pieces but recently a thrifty German inventor employed by one of the electric companies has caused these pieces to be saved and he makes use of them by cementing them to the ends of new carbons. In this way the entire carbon is consumed. The time spent in the reconstruction of the carbon is very trifling and the saving well worth while where there are any great number of the stubs to be saved.

Health—Color—Sunshine

A wonderful trinity this. Your health, the color of your clothing and the glorious sunshine have much to do with the human body. If you have not given the subject any special thought, you may well wonder what connection there can be between the color of one's clothing and health.

The salutary influences of solar light not solar heat are not sufficiently well known to have their therapeutic value appreciated. The sun has its effect beneficially or otherwise on everything in the universe, the human body not excepted. There are certain cases wherein one needs the heat of the sun but there are many more in which the light of the sun is of greater value.

Do Not Wear Black Habitually

Black clothes, black hats, black shoes should be discarded as regular wear in midsummer not only in the tropical and semi-tropical countries but everywhere. Not only in midsummer but in all seasons of the year in all countries where one is much in the sunshine. Why? Because it is an indisputable fact black material transmits the heat but absorbs the light of the sun. If you ride walk or work while being exposed to the heat of the sun then it is a matter of grave concern as to the color of your clothing. Danger and destruction may lurk in the heat of the sun but not in the light thereof.

Curious Illness

"Yes" said the good woman who was describing the last illness of a friend "she was taken suddenly sick with pantomine poisoning and four doctors came to the house and insulted about her and diagrammed her case very closely. They decided that she had eaten some fish or something that had paragraphs in it and so they gave her a hypocritical injection of a ... that would destroy the bacillics but she didn't seem to help any, and she soon was in a state of chrono."—Chicago Evening Post.

CANADIAN MONEY A MENACE

New $10 Goldpiece and New Penny Look Much Alike According to Banker

Similarity in appearance of the new Canadian $10 gold piece and the Canadian penny and the consequent danger of confusion of the two caused J. W. Spangler vice-president of the Seattle National bank to issue specific directions to the men at the windows to look out for the penny.

The coins are nearly alike in appearance excepting that the penny is a trifle smaller than the gold piece. The obverse and reverse sides of both coins are similar excepting that the lettering is respectively ten dollars and one cent.

The penny is of unusually light copper and the bust of King George is in ... relief on both coins and the gold coin is the first ever turned out by a Canadian mint, paper currency having been the circulating medium above the value of 5 cents.

Bankers have been warned of an attempted fraud on the part of men in Canada who have triple plated the new Canadian penny with gold and have floated the coins in this country as $10 gold pieces relying on the hurry of business to successfully conceal the telltale lettering, and it is stated that such coins have been passed in the Pacific Northwest.

WANTED TO KNOW THE PRICE

Monte Carlo Visitor Had Learned Caution From the Size of His Bill at the Hotel

Judge William H. Moore at a horse show supper in Gotham's newest hotel discussed hotel prices.

They are worse at Monte Carlo perhaps, he said, than anywhere else in the world. The German kaiser is sneered at in Monte Carlo because when he enters a barber shop for a shave he always asks what the charge is to be before he sits down in the chair.

But what is a man to do in a barber shop where it is no uncommon thing to be charged two or three dollars for the simplest operation?

And it's the same thing in the hotels. I know a man who took a suite at a Monte Carlo hotel without asking the price of anything—and in the restaurants of such hotels it's a common thing to find no prices even on the menus.

Well, when this man came to pay his bill it was enormous. But he paid it. Then he said:

Have you any 25 centime stamps?

Yes, monsieur, said the clerk. How many do you wish?

My friend smiled blandly.

Tell me first, please, he said, what you charge for them here.

Balkan Ballads

In the Balkan countries the ballad makers have certainly been at least as important as the makers of laws. Servia's national ballads commemorate the glories of the Servian Empire, Dushan, the fatal battle of Kossovo and the legendary exploits of the hero Marko Kralyevich and his horse Sharats, are of Homeric proportions and sung to the accompaniment of a guitar with cords of horse-hair tells have kept national feeling warm for centuries. In recent years the Servian government published a popular edition. In Macedonia Sir Charles Eliot heard a schoolboy recite a Bulgarian poem which took an hour and a quarter with a simple but significant plot. The Pasha of Sofia summons a Bulgarian hero who is his friend and tells him he has orders to execute him. The Bulgarian asks why. The Pasha says he does not know but he must do it, and he does.

Looking for Owner of Fingers

A farmer near Kansas City, Mo., is looking for the owner of a couple of fingers he has in his possession. He went to market with a load of potatoes and started to sleep in his wagon during the night before market opened. He was disturbed by the moving of the canvas over the load and waking saw a hand slip beneath the canvas and abstract a couple of the tubers. The operation was repeated so many times that he could foresee nothing but the disappearance of the entire load unless he took summary action. Raising a sharp hatchet he had with him, the farmer smote the hand the next time it appeared and the next morning found two guilty fingers in the wagon. The remainder of his potatoes were not molested.

Twenty-Cent Shoes at Panama

The rope-soled slippers with cloth uppers known as Spanish alpargatas and worn by practically all the European and colored laborers in the canal zone are imported all the way from Spain in such quantities that they can be retailed at the low price of 20 cents a pair. The European laborer wears them 12 months in the year on the Isthmus and over 1,000,000 pairs are sold annually by the commissary. Alpargatas are durable, and have been adopted by Isthmian bathers as the most convenient form of beach shoe.

To Give Women a Broader Outlook

It is not expected that women will make politics cleaner. But the broader outlook upon life that politics brings to women will make them worthier friends, wives, sisters, mothers and companions for the men and children of this state. That incidentally will react upon politics and the participation of better men and women in politics will cleanse it.—Emporia Gazette.

Training Children of Wealth

Not all wealthy people are foolish, although many who inherit means may do foolish things. No mother who has to work for a living has more sensible methods of bringing up children than Mrs. Edna Reabirt of Toledo, O., whose five-year-old son is to inherit a million when he becomes of age. He is being taught the value of money by being obliged to earn the pennies he would spend. Then he is being taught habits of thrift by a simple bank system of his own. His mother is not asking the courts for a big allowance annually in order to bring up the boy according to his station, as if the possession of a million made the child different from ordinary children. It is safe to say that he will not grow up with extravagant, foolish notions and that when the million is put in his hands he will not know what to do with it.

"Set."

What is the favorite word for the English language? The Germans have their schlag and zug which cover many meanings. But we beat them in the one word—set. post, which you might suspect of the supremacy of ambiguity but set. One always thought that post was the word that meant all things and nothing. The punster should watch the word set, which has achieved nearly seventy columns in the new English dictionary. It is a small word but its meanings are almost unlimited. You should set to work on the word which you use every day in a hundred senses. And it would be a pleasant, popular game to set down to the number of ways in which you have used that word during the day. Set to partners you might call it.—London Chronicle.

Orange Blossom Anaesthetic.

A Baltimore surgeon has discovered a new anaesthetic in orange blossoms which he has found may be employed most happily in ... his women patients. No, this doesn't show that the ruling passion is strong in death. But it is a real discovery, since it promises to lead to a greater discovery, and this is that woman does not think with her brain, after all. That neither are the sensory nerves located in the supposed seat of intelligence, her mind. All the roads that lead to Rome in her case, touching sensation and emotion, register upon the switchboard of her heart.

Another Enemy of the Fly.

The fly has an effective enemy other than the hand that wields the swatter. This is the parasitic fungus known as the Empusa muscae. This fungus is a deadly enemy of the house fly, and it must destroy myriads of these pernicious insects, especially in the fall. The flies may often be seen in a dead or dying condition on walls, ceilings and window panes, surrounded by a quantity of white powder—i. e., the spores of the fungus which have fallen from the insect's body. These spores are capable of infecting other flies which may come in contact with them. Whether the flies actually eat the spores, or merely get them attached to their bodies, apparently is not known.

Frenchman Works Short Time.

Recent investigations into the hours of work by officials of the French department of navigation have brought to light a record in government employment in the shape of an official whose daily "hours of duty" amount to exactly two minutes. This man dwells at a place on the Belgian frontier, and his arduous labors consist in fetching from one office a list of the number of barges that have entered French territory the previous 24 hours and handing the said list in at another office. If the position be a sinecure, the pay is not high, the remuneration amounting to $1.40 a month.

ROMANS HAD MANY SLAVES

In Some Households There Were Hundreds of Servants Whose Duties Were Manifold.

The Roman deprived himself of many private comforts that he might make a rich display before his guests. The wealthy man's dwelling was very large; the so-called House of the Faun at Pompeii occupies an entire square that of the Roman noble usually covered a far greater area.

The care of a lordly residence required the service of a multitude of slaves, we hear of a man who in the country and city together employed more than four thousand. They were organized somewhat like an army in divisions and companies under their several overseers. Each servant had as his special duty some minute part of the household work. Many were needed for the ceremonies attending the admission of guests, many for the care of the baths, bedrooms, kitchen and dining rooms as well as for the wardrobes, toilet and personal service of the various members of the family. On going out the master or mistress was accompanied by a throng of servants whose number and splendid livery advertised the rank and wealth of their owner. Other companies of slaves spun wool, made clothes, kept the house in repair and cared for the sick. There were some whose task was to enforce order and quiet among the rest. We could hardly believe that so many persons in a single household could find employment or that the processes of labor could be so minutely portioned out did we not take into account the genius of the Romans for organization. On the country estates were plowmen, herdsmen, vine dressers, gardeners, keepers of bees, poultry and fish and many other classes of laborers.—Botsford

HAD TOO MUCH ELOQUENCE

Mr. Chase Succumbed to the Force and Length of the Orator's Argument

William T. Evans of Cincinnati is what might be termed exhaustive in his oratory. If he undertook to tell of an adventure with a taxicab chauffeur he would begin with Adam and finally reach the street crossing where yellow taxi No 41144 hit him.

Mr Evans was one of the principal speakers on the program of the Woman Press club at the Waldorf one afternoon. One of the other gentlemen on the program was William A Chase, the dean of American painters. Mr Chase occupied a seat upon the platform somewhat to Mr Evans' left.

"And so," said Mr Evans "I believe that my conclusions are justified. I am sure that our dear friend Mr Chase, will support me in this. Is not that so, Mr Chase?"

Mr Evans turned to gaze benignantly upon Mr Chase. The feminine audience rustled expectantly and craned its several rounded necks to behold Mr Chase.

Mr Chase, head slightly upon one side and eyes closed, slept sweetly on. "Ah—poo" Mr Chase breathed softly through his parted lips.—Baltimore Sun

Who Invented Paper?

All the world knows that the Arabs transmitted from India to Europe through Arabia the figures with which we do our sums, but it is not generally known that we also have them to thank for paper. At various times the scholars of different countries have tried definitely to determine the real discoverer of paper in the eleventh century. It is to paper that we owe the renaissance of letters. From time immemorial something answering modern paper was used in China, where it was manufactured from silk. About the middle of the seventh century of our era there seems to have been established in Arabia a manufactory of paper, and fifty years later the way was discovered to make it from cotton instead of from silk, silk being a rare commodity outside of China at the time, and cotton relatively plentiful. In the reign of Henry II of France a Greek scholar was sent to Paris to arrange systematically a catalogue of antique manuscripts in the royal library, and a notation in his hand speaks of what was then known as 'paper' as originating in Damascus. The later invention of making paper from flax linen, hemp has been attributed equally to Italy and Germany, but there is evidence that it existed prior to the fourteenth century.—Harper's Weekly

Aged Negro Was Unused to Literary Composition and It Made His Head Ache

The Atlanta Constitution tells about an aged negro who asked his boss Colonel Yerger to write a letter for him to his sweetheart.

"All right, Sam, I'll do it," agreed the colonel.

"Has yer got de paper and de ink and de pen ready, sir?"

"Yes, Sam, go ahead."

"Write Thompson street, New York."

"All right."

"Has yer got hit?"

"Yes."

"All of hit?"

"Certainly."

"Thompson street, New York."

"Dat's hit. Now write May de fourteenth."

"Yes."

"Has yer got hit down, boss, already?"

"Yes."

"Go 'way, boss, you're jokin'! Read it to me."

"May 14th."

"Mah goodness, you has got hit down all right. Now, boss, read hit all over from de berry beginning."

"Thompson street, New York, May 14th."

"Dat's right. Whew! Say, boss, lets res' awhile. I'se tired. My head aches like hit was gwinter split."

STILL SEARCH FOR TREASURE

Colored People of the South Victims of Sharpers Who Sell Them Divining Rods

The restaurant orchestra had just finished playing "Dixie."

"Speaking of buried treasure," said a southerner after the noise had died away, "the search for the hidden riches of Captain Kidd isn't in it with the hunt that is going on continually all over the south for wealth that is supposed to have been secreted during the Civil war. Two classes of persons are engaged in it. It is the joint avocation of the negroes, but not more than one in a hundred thousand ever finds anything. The class that gets the real coin is the slick Yankee who travels through the south selling divining rods and things of that sort to the negroes. These witch sticks are supposed to draw their holders irresistibly to where the treasure is buried. They sell for a big price—$10 to $50—it depends on how much the purchaser has hidden away under his own hearthstone."

Shapes of the Satellites

Photometric studies of six of the principal satellites of Saturn made by Guthnick indicate a confirmation of the previous conclusions of other observers that several and perhaps all of these satellites behave like our own moon in keeping always the same side toward the planet around which they revolve. In regard to the satellite named Tethys an interesting hypothesis is offered to account for its very marked changes of luminosity. The theory is that Tethys possesses the form of a long ellipsoid, the two principal axes of which are to one another in the ratio of five to two. A similar suggestion has been made concerning the shape of the asteroid Eros, which likewise exhibits great variations of light, according to its position in its orbit around the sun.—Harper's Weekly.

Indian Rice Rolls

The cultivation of rice in India includes divers varieties, differing in size, shape and color of grain as well as in suitability for culinary purposes. More than seventy million acres are annually put under rice in India, and samples of all the varieties produced have recently been analyzed in England. One of these is peculiar in that it is too glutinous to be boiled in the ordinary way. This difficulty is avoided by boiling it in bamboo tubes, and after being thus prepared it is left in the tubes to be eaten cold, especially by travelers. When the rice is eaten the bamboo is peeled off and a long roll of rice appears, which forms an excellent substitute for bread.—Harper's Weekly.

Human Fellowship

In trying to find a basis of universal fellowship, what is the first consideration? Not money. That is not a basis for fellowship. Of course there are exceptional circumstances when money may pay for travel and culture and so aid in the formation of character. But money is not a guaranty of either culture or hospitality. It is the work we do in the world, not the money we have, that qualifies us for fellowship. Every known being must do his work well in the world, whether it is paid for or not, in order to qualify for the fellowship of the common life.—Leuteurth Century Vapor.

MUST HAVE HAD BUSY LIFE

Boer Woman Surely Holds the World's Record for Her Many and Varied Marriage Ventures

The world's record in matrimonial ventures is probably held by Mrs Hellin M de Beer, a widow, seventy eight years of age, residing at Pretoria, Transvaal. At the age of eighteen she married Petrus Jacobus Labie, who died leaving her with one child. Ten months later she took another husband, a widower with three children. A year and five months afterwards he also died, leaving her with four children. Within five months she married for the third time another widower, this time with seven children. With him she lived for eleven years and had seven children, when he also died. After five years' widowhood she married for the fourth time on this occasion a widower with eight children. With him she had four children, and after eleven years he too died. Five years later she married a man named Hendrik Klopper. Another eleven years elapsed and then her fifth husband died, leaving her with ten children. In two years' time she contracted another marriage with Hendrik Van Wyk, a widower who brought five children to swell the family. Another eleven years passed and he, too, went the way of his five predecessors, his death occurring only recently. Mrs de Beer is now the mother and stepmother of 49 children and the grandmother of 270.

ACCOUNTED FOR THE CHANGE

Explanation Satisfied Soldier as to the Cause of His Colonel's Lamb-like Demeanor

A soldier being photographed happened to mention the name of the regiment to which he belonged, whereupon the photographer said that he had photographed the colonel of the same regiment and showed the private a copy.

"Well," said the soldier, "I've been Colonel — a good many times on the parade ground to say nothing of South Africa, and he never looked like that."

"Yes," said the photographer, "but you must recollect that the colonel was neither on the parade ground nor in South Africa when he was photographed."

"Well, but I've seen him alone, and he always looked as if he were going to jump down your throat. In this you'd think he couldn't say boo to a goose. Was he alone when he came here?"

"Well, no," said the photographer with unconscious irony, "he had his wife with him."

"Oh," said the soldier thoughtfully, "that accounts for it."—London Tit Bits.

Found Use for the Yacht

The resourcefulness of some men at times furnishes a surprise even to those who know them well. A fair illustration is a certain New Yorker of wealth who bought a costly steam yacht. He is very fond of the water, but his chief object in the purchase was to please his wife. Then he found she did not care at all for that sort of thing and as a result she remained at home whenever he went off on a cruise. His wife died, and after a reasonable time he married again. "It's all right now, old man," he said to an acquaintance who congratulated him some time later. "You see I looked around till I found a woman who would rather live on a yacht than in a house—and I married her. Now the yacht's worth while."

Powerful New Magnifying Glass

A new method of seeing things which is one million million times more powerful than the most powerful magnifying glass of today is being tested in England by Sir J J Thomson. The spectroscope was the finest instrument of analysis available for chemical and scientific research. And now comes this instrument, millions upon millions of times more exact than the spectroscope. With his new magnifying apparatus, a combination of spectroscope and photographic camera, Sir J J Thomson is said to have been able to detect chemical combinations which exist only in that part of a second which compares to a second as a second compares to a year.

Long Lives

Cats have nine lives they say. The cats don't say it, of course, people do. As a matter of fact a cat lives to be about fifteen years old if it is well taken care of, and a dog's life is of about the same length. Horses live to be thirty or more years of age. A lion may see seventy years pass by. An elephant can often count his years by hundreds if he is an educated elephant, and it is said that whales live close to 1,000 when they keep out of the way of harpoons. Turtles are also long lived creatures, the more so it seems the larger they are.

Lived Long With Bullet in Heart

After carrying a bullet in his heart for thirty years, Gottfried Fischer, aged sixty three, of Zofingen in the canton of Aargau, Switzerland, has just died. During the pursuit of a criminal Fischer was shot in the heart and was taken to hospital apparently dying. To the amazement of the doctors, however, he recovered, and in a few weeks was able to rejoin the police force. Further work was done by the Letters and continued his duties. His death was due to a fall on the ice.

Cruel Name to Give Child

The most burdensome name ever bestowed on a child was that given by Arthur Pepper, a laundryman of West Derby, Liverpool, to his daughter. It comprised one name for every letter of the alphabet and was certainly in serious in its way, running Anna Bertha Cecilia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louise Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysis Venus Winifred Xenophon Yetty Zeno. P of course was provided by the surname Pepper.

Her Sculpture

A French woman who is wealthy, and noted as a generous entertainer of artistic folk, has herself some ambition to shine as an amateur sculptor. A Paris paper has told how this clever woman managed to have a piece of work accepted by an art jury. One day she invited a master sculptor to dinner. After the dessert she said carelessly: "Come and see my little figure. It does not quite come up to my idea."

They passed into the atelier, where the sculptor gave a few reparatory touches to the figure.

Some days later she invited another sculptor to dinner. Again the atelier was visited. "Not bad, not at all bad," said this artist, and generously gave the figure a few useful touches. After several seances of this kind the good lady was not ashamed proudly to acknowledge the complete work as her own.

Queen Elizabeth Opened It.

In connection with Granville Barker's production of "Twelfth Night," it is interesting to recall that we have still standing in London one of the halls in which the play was performed during Shakespeare's lifetime. In the hall of the Middle Temple, opened by Queen Elizabeth in person in 1576, "Twelfth Night" was acted at Christmas 1601, and there is a strong probability that Shakespeare himself played a part in that performance. In the early days the Inns of Court were patrons of the drama, and the hall of Gray's Inn can also claim to have witnessed a contemporary Shakespeare production, "A Comedy of Errors," having been given there in 1594.—London Chronicle.

PROVIDING FOR THE FUTURE

Station in Maine Has Arranged to Turn Out Half a Billion Lobsters This Year.

Half a billion lobsters will be the number hatched at the government station at Boothbay Harbor Maine for the present year. It is a huge figure bigger than most people can realize. It will also mark a record for the number of shellfish brought to life at the government place.

At the present time there are at the Boothbay hatchery 1,559 seed lobsters from which eggs will be secured.

The season for collecting the seed lobsters extends into the spring of the year so that it is safe to say that fully two-thirds as many lobsters as have already been collected will be added to the number on hand. The average number of eggs secured from the mother lobster is 20,000. The percentage of fertility of those that are hatched at the government station is so high that it is safe to say that practically all of them will be hatched.

Reckoning on this basis the number of seeders now at the hatchery will produce 270,000,000 lobsters. The number yet to be collected will very nearly total up to 500,000,000.

AT THE AGE OF REAL WORTH

Youth of Eighty Years of Age Hopes to Demonstrate His Value Before the World

Here is a young fellow who is the real thing. Andrew D. White founder of Cornell university for several years representative of the nation at St. Petersburg and Berlin and delegate to the first Hague peace congress recently reached the age of discretion and celebrated his eightieth birthday. So now he expects to be able to do some real work. He has taken up the study of criminology and hopes he says within the next few years to make some contributions worth while on the subject.

That is the sort of spirit of youth to make a man envious. But why not? At eighty a person is just beginning to accumulate a bit of wisdom and to get rid of the half baked ideas of his boyhood. He is reaching a point where he sees through the shams of success that really is failure and failure that really is success. With such a good foundation to build on why shouldn't he start in to do something of real value?

Blessed are the young in heart.—Kansas City Star

GOOD THOUGHTS ABOUT BOOKS

Nothing Ever Penned Could Suit All Minds—In That Respect They Are Much Like Friends

Too many of us treat books—especially the classics as if they were something remote from the scheme of life and to be approached with awe. If you will read the best literature you will discover perhaps to your amazement that it is very simple. The word classic has perhaps frightened you away from many libraries.

Just as people vary books vary and while you may admire one type of person you may not admire another.

Because you do not care for a certain book you need not necessarily be ashamed of the fact. You may realize its intrinsic greatness but it may have no special message for you. That is the way a fine writer once felt about Milton and he had the courage and common sense to say so.

We should always beware, however of judging too hastily. A person may mean very little to you on a first casual meeting but don't give that person up immediately. Try again. A deeper acquaintance may lead to a lifelong friendship.

There is the friend who is good to have with you in times of trouble and the friend no less valuable who is wonderful in times of joy. So there are books for rainy days and bright days for dark moods and light moods. Choose your books according to your mood and see how the doors of enchantment will open for you.

Immense Ant Hills

West African ant hills are veritable giants frequently standing forty feet high. These ant hills are shaped something like a sugar loaf and are divided inside into hundreds of tiny rooms. They have needless to say, myriads of inhabitants and these are all busily making roads gathering food and watching over the eggs and youngsters. The natives are afraid to touch these hills except from a distance with firearms. The ants often make their strongholds around trees and they are built very solidly, with sides sometimes twenty inches thick. The inside is hollow and at the top there is a sort of attic. The royal cell where the queen ant lives is always found on the ground floor. This good lady is a prisoner but is careful is fed by her busy subjects the eggs she lays being immediately carried away and deposited in rooms set apart for the purpose.—Wide World is a mighty misleading thing. Nobody in real life looks like a fashion plate, and nobody would want to.

The Fashion Plate

The average fashion plate represents a man with garments on that would have to be made out of sheet metal to look like they are pictured.

No matter how a man stands or sits, no matter what position he has assumed, the garments are always immaculately correct without a blemish. This is asking too much of a suit or coat. You cannot expect it in real life, and we don't want you to believe that our clothes fit like that.

If you twist yourself around in our clothes they will not be smooth, but they do fit and they hang just right. They drape themselves to the human form just as you would want them to. There is no better way of judging how well these clothes fit you than to come in and try them on.

THE FADED FIELD.

Broad bars of sunset slanted gold
Are laid among the field and here
The silence sings as if some old
Refrain that once rang long and clear

Came softly stealing to the ear
Without the aid of sound. The rill
Is voiceless and the grass is sere,
But beauty's soul abideth still

Trancelike the mellow air doth hold
The sorrow of the passing year,
The heart of nature groweth cold
The time for falling snow is near,
On phantom feet, which none may hear,

Creeps with the shadow of the hill
The semblance of departed cheer,
But beauty's soul abideth still.

The dead gray clustered weeds enfold
The well known summer path and drear
The dusking hills, like billows rolled
Against the distant sky appear
From lonely haunts where Night and Fear
Keep ghostly tryst when mists are chill,
The dark pine lifts a jagged spear
But beauty's soul abideth still.

ENVOI

Dear love, the days once were dear
May come no more, life may fulfill
But beauty's soul abideth still
—Robert Burns Wilson

The hospitable home of Mr and Mrs S O. Williams on South Foster street was the bright setting of a delightful six o'clock dinner party last night. Dainty cards decorated with appropriate New Year's wishes marked the covers laid on the snowy table made attractive with its candelabra and crystal for Mr and Mrs G H Malone, Mr and Mrs A Y Malone Mr and Mrs W C Fitter and Miss Fitter and the charming host and hostess.

The J A O Club postponed from yesterday, will meet next Friday with Mrs Mortis Black.

APPRECIATIONS TO THE PATRONS

We wish to express our sincere gratitude to the patrons of the Dixie Market for their liberal patronage during the time we have owned and operated the same.

We have sold the market to Mr Rush of Enterprise who comes to us very highly recommended. He is courteous and kind and his aim is to give the very best service possible. He continues the two experienced meat cutters whose services helped to make our market liberally patronized.

Wishing you a prosperous and happy new year we remain yours sincerely,

MICHIGAN CONGRESSMAN LEAPS TO DEATH IN OCEAN

Washington D C Jan 3. Official word reached the war department of the death by drowning of William W Wedemeyer congressman from Ann Arbor Mich. Representative Wedemeyer who is supposed to have been mentally deranged is reported to have leaped from the government steamer Panama while on his way to the United States from the Isthmus.

The Michigan representative reached the canal zone on the day President Taft started back to Washington and his friends made an attempt to have him placed in irons on the Delaware and returned to the United States because of his previous attempts at suicide.

Col Geo W Goethals however decided it was better to place him in the government hospital at Ancon from which it is understood he was released Wednesday and started back to the United States. He eluded his nurses almost before the steamer was out of Panama harbor and leaped overboard drowning before assistance could be given him.

This information was dispatched to the war department today from officers of the canal. The body was not recovered and it was presumed was carried away by sharks which infest the harbor.

WILL NOT APPOINT COL G W GOETHELS

Washington Jan 3. Following a conference with Senator Brandegee of Connecticut chairman of the senate committee on interoceanic canals President Taft announced today he would not attempt to institute civil government in the canal zone and that he would not nominate Col George Goethels to be governor of the zone.
